business class on japan airlines: Letters to His Children from an Uncommon Attorney David Roberts, 2014-08-22 This memoir was inspired by the author's daughter. He would tell her stories about incidents in his life: so she persuaded him to write them down. You must write all this down, Dad, so they can be read by your grandchildren. And you must get on with it before you die. Some stories are brief, half a page: others are long, twelve pages. It is the sort of book to keep by the bedside and dip into, one story at a time. Some stories cover events that occurred when the author was a small boy growing up in England during the war. Some cover incidents while he and his wife were travelling, in China, Japan, France, in Canada and in other odd places: events that occurred in the neighbourhood in Caulfeild Cove, where he and his wife have lived for fifty two years. There are pieces about Haida Gwaii and some about his experiences practising law. The stories range from the funny to the harrowing.

It is both a literary triumph and a compelling read - not least for the many who have known him - as well as a historical record of some significance tracking Japan's post-war history from abject poverty to unimaginable prosperity as the world's second largest economy, and the 'lost' post-bubble years. In particular, the author includes a detailed account of his association with Mishima Yukio while preparing the Penguin New Writing in Japan, his early years in Kyoto and his experience of living in Tenri City.
