nacho business: Roger Kriney, 2008-11-01 Cousins, Ren Hadley and Doug Gove from New Jersey meet in St. Paul, Minnesota, unexpectedly after fifteen years apart. Both, unable to heal from failed marriages and child separation agony, seek out assistance from psychotherapist, Palmer Anderson. Although successfully able to guide them through their sadness and loneliness, Anderson can't seem to prevent the collapse of his own family structure and career. The three men, in their early thirties, together with another of Palmer's deeply troubled clients, Jake Wilbert attempt to find their way through the post hippy, cult oriented 1970's that was St. Paul. Fast forward to 2006 in the western coastal Mexican village of Sayulita, the long time friends, now in their early sixties gather at the home of the now expatriate Dr. Anderson. The decision to include Jake in the reunion, proves questionable, at best as he drags them through a two week marijuana hazed, unwelcome and often unwholesome escapade through the Mexican drug trade, sexual infidelity, a dangerous confrontation with an indigenous Mexican tribe, a romp through a new age, clothing optional resort with a half Mexican half Japanese beauty, a pretty Seattle travel agent and a group of Alabama society belles ending in a horrific clash with the unstable Mexican political scene. This is a story of rescue and commitment between old friends. Their 1960's attitudes of acceptance and tolerance are tested in the post 911 world as they discover just how much they have come to still rely on each other and just how important that reliance has become as they have aged.

But as Erika finds herself increasingly entangled in a web of lies, moral dilemmas, and bad behavior (not to mention those pesky feelings), it quickly becomes clear that her path to Stanford won't be as clear-cut as she had hoped. nacho business: Global Liberalism and Elite Schooling in Argentina Howard Prosser, 2017-07-20 A response to Argentina's shifting political climate, Global Liberalism and Elite Schooling in Argentina reveals how elite schooling encourages the hoarding of educational advantage and reinforces social inequalities. Presenting Buenos Aires's Caledonian School as part of the growing scholarly discussion on elite education in the Global South, Howard Prosser situates the school's history in concert with that of the state, the region, and the globe. The book applies new methodologies for the study of elite schools in globalizing circumstances by fusing ethnographic fieldwork with archival research and a wealth of secondary sources. This transdisciplinary approach focuses on the nature of liberalism as a global ideal, positing that eliteness is sustained by an economy with its own culture of value and exchange that, ironically, the scholarship on elites may help perpetuate.

nacho business: An Anthropology of Making in Santa Clara del Cobre Michele Avis Feder-Nadoff, 2024-05-27 This book, introduced with a Foreword by Tim Ingold, offers a nuanced reflection on the meaning of making and artisan agency, demonstrating how copper-smithing produces not only objects, but also lives, worlds, meanings, and social transformation. Through long-term ethnography, grounded in apprenticeship to master coppersmith Jesús Pérez Ornelas, Feder-Nadoff's intimate description of communal and artisanal life in Santa Clara del Cobre, Michoacán, México provides a critical reappraisal of aesthetics and compelling ways to think about how aura and agency are produced. By mapping flows and frictions between persons, places, and things, this study closes the gap between economic and socio-political analysis of craft, on the one hand, and aesthetic, material, and phenomenological studies of making, on the other. Although craft historically plays a prominent national, even ideological role in Mexico, as in many countries, most artisans ironically remain absent, often living in marginalized, precarious circumstances. By tracing the cycles of life, death, and afterlife, of these maker-protagonists, their bodies of knowledge, skilled performances, and objects, this poetic monograph testifies to their presence.
