History of the Corporation

The Tlingit Haida Tribal Business Corporation was established to promote economic self-sufficiency among the Tlingit and Haida people. The origins of the corporation date back to the 1970s when tribal leaders recognized the necessity for a structured approach to economic development. The corporation was officially formed in response to the need for a unified business entity that could capitalize on opportunities while preserving the cultural heritage of the tribes.

Throughout the years, the corporation has evolved, adapting to changing economic conditions and the needs of its community. It has successfully navigated various challenges, including shifting regulations and market demands, while remaining focused on its foundational mission: to enhance the quality of life for tribal members and ensure sustainable economic growth.

Structure and Governance

The governance of the Tlingit Haida Tribal Business Corporation is designed to reflect the values and traditions of the tribes it represents. The corporation is overseen by a board of directors, which is composed of elected representatives from the Tlingit and Haida communities. This structure ensures that the voices of tribal members are heard and that the corporation operates in alignment with the community's interests.

In addition to the board, the corporation employs a team of professionals who manage day-to-day operations and strategic planning. This combination of local governance and professional management allows the corporation to remain agile and responsive to both community needs and market opportunities.

Business Ventures and Economic Impact

The Tlingit Haida Tribal Business Corporation engages in a variety of business ventures that contribute significantly to the local economy. These ventures include tourism, timber, fisheries, and construction, among others. Each of these sectors not only generates revenue but also creates jobs for tribal members and helps to revitalize the local economy.

Some of the notable business initiatives include:

- Tourism Ventures: The corporation manages several tourism-related businesses that highlight the cultural heritage of the Tlingit and Haida people, including cultural tours and heritage sites.
- Environmental Stewardship: The corporation is involved in sustainable forestry and fisheries management, ensuring that natural resources are used responsibly while supporting economic development.
- Real Estate Development: The corporation invests in real estate projects that provide housing and commercial opportunities, further stimulating economic growth in the region.

These ventures not only enhance economic stability but also promote cultural education and environmental sustainability, reinforcing the corporation's commitment to the community.

Sustainability and Community Engagement

Sustainability is a core principle of the Tlingit Haida Tribal Business Corporation. The corporation actively seeks to balance economic growth with environmental stewardship. This commitment is evident in its business practices, which prioritize eco-friendly initiatives and sustainable resource management.

Community engagement is another critical aspect of the corporation's operations. The Tlingit Haida Tribal Business Corporation regularly hosts community meetings and forums to gather input from tribal members. This inclusive approach helps to ensure that the corporation's strategies align with the community's needs and aspirations.

Some of the ways the corporation engages with the community include:

- Workshops and Training Sessions: The corporation offers various training programs aimed at developing entrepreneurship skills among tribal members.

- Community Grants: Financial support is provided for local projects and initiatives that align with the corporation's mission.
- Collaboration with Local Organizations: The corporation partners with non-profits and educational institutions to promote cultural awareness and economic development.

Through these initiatives, the Tlingit Haida Tribal Business Corporation fosters a sense of community ownership and pride, ensuring that economic development benefits everyone.

Challenges and Opportunities

While the Tlingit Haida Tribal Business Corporation has achieved many successes, it faces various challenges in the dynamic business environment. Factors such as regulatory changes, competition from other businesses, and the need for continuous innovation pose ongoing challenges for the corporation.

However, with challenges come opportunities. The corporation is well-positioned to capitalize on emerging trends, such as eco-tourism and renewable energy. By leveraging its cultural heritage and commitment to sustainability, the Tlingit Haida Tribal Business Corporation can attract new markets and create additional revenue streams.

Moreover, the increasing interest in indigenous cultures presents a unique opportunity for the corporation to expand its tourism initiatives, offering authentic experiences that educate visitors about Tlingit and Haida traditions.

Conclusion

The Tlingit Haida Tribal Business Corporation stands as a testament to the resilience and entrepreneurial spirit of the Tlingit and Haida peoples. Through its diverse business ventures and commitment to sustainability, the corporation not only enhances the economic well-being of its community but also preserves and promotes its rich cultural heritage. As it navigates the challenges and opportunities of the modern economy, the corporation remains a vital force for empowerment and growth within the Tlingit and Haida communities.

tlingit haida tribal business corporation: Reclaiming Indigenous Planning Ryan Walker, Ted Jojola, 2013-09-01 Centuries-old community planning practices in Indigenous communities in Canada, the United States, New Zealand, and Australia have, in modern times, been eclipsed by ill-suited western approaches, mostly derived from colonial and neo-colonial traditions. Since planning outcomes have failed to reflect the rights and interests of Indigenous people, attempts to reclaim planning have become a priority for many Indigenous nations throughout the world. In Reclaiming Indigenous Planning, scholars and practitioners connect the past and present to facilitate better planning for the future. With examples from the Canadian Arctic to the Australian desert, and the cities, towns, reserves and reservations in between, contributors engage topics including Indigenous mobilization and resistance, awareness-raising and seven-generations visioning, Indigenous participation in community planning processes, and forms of governance. Relying on case studies and personal narratives, these essays emphasize the critical need for Indigenous communities to reclaim control of the political, socio-cultural, and economic agendas that shape their lives. The first book to bring Indigenous and non-Indigenous authors together across continents, Reclaiming Indigenous Planning shows how urban and rural communities around the world are reformulating planning practices that incorporate traditional knowledge, cultural identity, and stewardship over land and resources. Contributors include Robert Adkins (Community and Economic Development Consultant, USA), Chris Andersen (Alberta), Giovanni Attili (La Sapienza), Aaron Aubin (Dillon Consulting), Shaun Awatere (Landcare Research, New Zealand), Yale Belanger (Lethbridge), Keith Chaulk (Memorial), Stephen Cornell (Arizona), Sherrie Cross (Macquarie), Kim Doohan (Native Title and Resource Claims Consultant, Australia), Kerri Jo Fortier (Simpw First Nation), Bethany Haalboom (Victoria University, New Zealand), Lisa Hardess (Hardess Planning Inc.), Garth Harmsworth (Landcare Research, New Zealand), Sharon Hausam (Pueblo of Laguna), Michael Hibbard (Oregon), Richard Howitt (Macquarie), Ted Jojola (New Mexico), Tanira Kingi (AgResearch, New Zealand), Marcus Lane (Griffith), Rebecca Lawrence (Umea), Gaim Lunkapis (Malaysia Sabah), Laura Mannell (Planning Consultant, Canada), Hirini Matunga (Lincoln University, New Zealand), Deborah McGregor (Toronto), Oscar Montes de Oca (AgResearch, New Zealand), Samantha Muller (Flinders), David Natcher (Saskatchewan), Frank Palermo (Dalhousie), Robert Patrick (Saskatchewan), Craig Pauling (Te Runanga o Ngai Tahu), Kurt tingit haida tribal business corporation: Coming into the Country John McPhee, 2011-04-01 Coming into the Country is an unforgettable account of Alaska and Alaskans. It is a rich tapestry of vivid characters, observed landscapes, and descriptive narrative, in three principal segments that deal, respectively, with a total wilderness, with urban Alaska, and with life in the remoteness of the bush. Readers of McPhee's earlier books will not be unprepared for his surprising shifts of scene and ordering of events, brilliantly combined into an organic whole. In the course of this volume we are made acquainted with the lore and techniques of placer mining, the habits and legends of the barren-ground grizzly, the outlook of a young Athapaskan chief, and tales of the fortitude of settlers—ordinary people compelled by extraordinary dreams. Coming into the Country unites a vast region of America with one of America's notable literary craftsmen, singularly qualified to do justice to the scale and grandeur of the design.

tingit haida tribal business corporation: Indigenous Peoples' Cultural Property Claims Karolina Kuprecht, 2013-11-19 This book analyses the legal aspects of international claims by indigenous peoples for the repatriation of their cultural property, and explores what legal norms and normative orders would be appropriate for resolving these claims. To establish context, the book first provides insights into the exceptional legislative responses to the cultural property claims of Native American tribes in the United States and looks at the possible relevance of this national law on the international level. It then shifts to the multinational setting by using the method of legal pluralism and takes into consideration international human rights law, international cultural heritage law, the applicable national laws in the United Kingdom, France and Switzerland, transnational law such as museum codes, and decision-making in extra-legal procedures. In the process, the book reveals the limits of the law in dealing with the growing imperative of human rights in the field, and concludes with three basic insights that are of key relevance for improving the law and decision-making with regard to indigenous peoples' cultural property.
