Overview of the Bicentennial Man Film Cast

The bicentennial man film cast comprises a distinguished group of actors selected to embody the complex characters within the story. Central to the film is the character Andrew Martin, a robot who gradually acquires human traits and emotions over two centuries. The film's casting choices aimed to balance the futuristic sci-fi elements with profound human drama, necessitating versatile actors capable of nuanced performances. The bicentennial man film cast not only includes lead actors but also a range of supporting performers who enhance the narrative's emotional and thematic layers. Together, the ensemble contributes to the film's exploration of identity, mortality, and love.

Main Cast Members and Their Roles

The primary figures within the bicentennial man film cast are essential to the storytelling and character development. Their portrayals anchor the film's emotional core and provide a human face to its philosophical questions.

Robin Williams as Andrew Martin

At the forefront of the bicentennial man film cast is Robin Williams, who plays Andrew Martin, the robot protagonist. Williams' performance is widely regarded as both heartfelt and compelling, capturing Andrew's evolution from mechanical servant to a being seeking humanity. His ability to convey subtle emotional shifts and vulnerability is a key factor in the film's engagement with audiences.

Embeth Davidtz as Little Miss/Maria

Embeth Davidtz portrays Little Miss, who later becomes Maria, a pivotal character in Andrew's life. Her role reflects the human connections that influence Andrew's journey. Davidtz's performance adds depth to the interpersonal dynamics that drive much of the film's emotional narrative.

Sam Neill as Richard Martin

Sam Neill plays Richard Martin, the patriarch of the Martin family who initially acquires Andrew. Neill's role is crucial in establishing the familial bonds that shape Andrew's development. His portrayal lends credibility and warmth to the family unit central to the story.

Oliver Platt as Rupert Burns

Oliver Platt appears as Rupert Burns, an inventor and collaborator who assists Andrew in his quest for humanity. Platt's characterization provides technical expertise and emotional support, offering insight into the scientific and ethical aspects of Andrew's transformation.

Supporting Cast and Character Contributions

Beyond the lead roles, the bicentennial man film cast includes several supporting actors who enrich the film's texture and strengthen its thematic concerns. These characters provide context, conflict, and additional emotional layers.

KW McCrary as Little Miss (Young)

In the early scenes, KW McCrary plays the young version of Little Miss, capturing the innocence and curiosity that characterize the Martin family's relationship with Andrew.

Hallie Foote as Portia

Hallie Foote's role as Portia, a household member, adds to the depiction of domestic life and societal norms affecting Andrew's experience. Her presence helps flesh out the social environment surrounding the Martin family.

Bradley Whitford as Alfred

Bradley Whitford's portrayal of Alfred provides a touchpoint for the broader societal and ethical questions posed by Andrew's existence. His character's interactions reflect the tensions between technology and humanity.

Additional Supporting Actors

- David Alan Grier as Rupert's Assistant
- Robin Thomas as Judge
- Steve Zahn as Walter Martin
- Jared Rushton as Young Richard Martin

These supporting roles contribute to the narrative's complexity, representing varying perspectives on Andrew's journey and the implications of artificial intelligence and personhood.

Casting Choices and Actor Performances

The bicentennial man film cast was carefully selected to ensure that each actor could deliver performances that resonate with the film's themes of humanity and transformation. The casting directors prioritized actors capable of emotional depth and subtlety, particularly for the lead role of Andrew Martin.

Robin Williams' Transformative Role

Robin Williams' involvement in the bicentennial man film cast brought significant gravitas and empathy to the character of Andrew. Known for his versatility, Williams adeptly balanced moments of humor, innocence, and profound sadness, allowing viewers to connect with a non-human character on a deeply emotional level.

Supporting Actors' Contributions

The supporting cast members were chosen for their ability to enhance the story's emotional and philosophical complexity. Their performances provided a realistic framework around Andrew's extraordinary circumstances, making the futuristic narrative accessible and relatable.

Use of Makeup and Visual Effects

In addition to the actors' performances, the bicentennial man film cast utilized makeup and visual effects extensively to portray Andrew's robotic origins and gradual humanization. This collaboration between cast and technical teams was critical in creating a believable and visually compelling character arc.

Impact of the Cast on the Film's Reception

The bicentennial man film cast played a significant role in shaping the film's reception among critics and audiences. Their performances were often highlighted as a strength, particularly Williams' portrayal of Andrew Martin, which was praised for its emotional authenticity.

Critical Acclaim for Acting

Critics recognized the bicentennial man film cast for bringing depth and nuance to a story that might otherwise have felt detached or overly technical. The cast's ability to convey complex emotions helped elevate the film beyond typical science fiction fare.

Audience Connection

Audience engagement with the film was largely driven by the bicentennial man film cast's performances. The relatability and warmth of the characters fostered empathy and reflection on themes of identity, love, and mortality.

Legacy of the Cast's Performances

The enduring impact of the bicentennial man film cast is evident in the film's continued discussion in the context of science fiction cinema and artificial intelligence narratives. Their portrayals remain a benchmark for emotionally driven performances within the genre.

bicentennial man film cast: The Literary Filmography Leonard Mustazza, 2006-05-17 From the very infancy of the film industry, filmmakers have relied heavily upon literature as the foundation for their movie material. Well-known literary works such as Dickens's A Christmas Carol and Hawthorne's The Scarlet Letter were adapted to film in the silent era, as were such books as Thomas Dixon's Jr.'s The Klansman, basis for the film Birth of a Nation. In recent years, Nick Hornsby's About a Boy and each of Helen Fielding's Bridget Jones's Diary novels were the basis for popular movies bearing the same names. A guide to English-language works that have been adapted as theatrical and television films, this volume includes books (both fiction and non-fiction), short stories, newspaper and magazine articles and poems. Entries are arranged alphabetically by literary title with cross-listings for films made under different titles. Each entry includes the original work's title, author, year of first publication, literary prizes, and a brief plot summary. Information on film adaptation(s) of the work, including adaptation titles, director, screenwriter, principal cast and the names of the characters they portray, major awards, and availability in the most common formats (DVD, VHS), is also offered.

bicentennial man film cast: Casting Might-Have-Beens Eila Mell, 2015-01-24 Some acting careers are made by one great role and some fall into obscurity when one is declined. Would Al Pacino be the star he is today if Robert Redford had accepted the role of Michael Corleone in The Godfather? Imagine Tom Hanks rejecting Uma Thurman, saying that she acted like someone in a high school play when she auditioned to play opposite him in The Bonfire of the Vanities. Picture Danny Thomas as The Godfather, or Marilyn Monroe as Cleopatra. This reference work lists hundreds of such stories: actors who didn't get cast or who turned down certain parts. Each entry, organized alphabetically by film title, gives the character and actor cast, a list of other actors considered for that role, and the details of the casting decision. Information is drawn from extensive research and interviews. From About Last Night (which John Belushi turned down at his brother's urging) to Zulu (in which Michael Caine was not cast because he didn't look Cockney enough), this book lets you imagine how different your favorite films could have been.

bicentennial man film cast: Historical Dictionary of African American Cinema S. Torriano Berry, Venise T. Berry, 2015-05-07 As early as 1909, African Americans were utilizing the new medium of cinema to catalogue the world around them, using the film camera as a device to capture their lives and their history. The daunting subject of race and ethnicity permeated life in America at the turn of the twentieth century and due to the effect of certain early films, specific television images, and an often-biased news media, it still plagues us today. As new technologies bring the power of the moving image to the masses, African Americans will shoot and edit on laptop computers and share their stories with a global audience via the World Wide Web. These independently produced visions will add to the diverse cache of African American images being displayed on an ever-expanding silver screen. This wide range of stories, topics, views, and genres will finally give the world a glimpse of African American life that has long been ignored and has yet to be seen. This second edition of Historical Dictionary of African American Cinema covers its history through a chronology, an introductory essay, appendixes, and an extensive bibliography. The dictionary section has over 1400 cross-referenced entries on actors, actresses, movies, producers, organizations, awards, and terminology, this book provides a better understanding of the role African Americans played in film history. This book is an excellent access point for students, researchers, and anyone wanting to know more about African American cinema.

bicentennial man film cast: Introducing Philosophy Through Film Richard Fumerton, Diane Jeske, 2009-04-27 Introducing Philosophy through Film "Introducing Philosophy Through Film is a truly wonderful introduction to the core problems of philosophy. Its combination of great films, classic articles from both historical and contemporary philosophers, wonderfully clear introductions to each section, and provocative questions for discussion make for an introduction that is as compelling as it is rigorous." Richard Foley, New York University "Fumerton and Jeske have compiled an excellent anthology, filled with dozens of classic texts on the central problems of philosophy most often addressed in introductory philosophy courses. And the films they suggest will help introduce students to philosophy in the most enjoyable way possible." Michael Huemer, University of Colorado From Monty Python and The Matrix to Casablanca and A Clockwork Orange, popular films offer surprisingly perceptive insights into complex philosophical concepts. Introducing Philosophy Through Film combines this novel pedagogical approach with all the virtues of a serious introductory anthology of classical and contemporary philosophical readings. The result is an engaging and effective way to fire the imagination of those new to philosophy. Drawing on a wide range of popular and easily accessible films — along with the ideas of a diverse selection of historical and contemporary thinkers — this book introduces many of the central areas of philosophical concern, including perception, philosophy of mind, ethics, religion, free will, determinism, and more. Chapter by chapter, the editors offer a discussion of relevant film clips to help illuminate and demystify the philosophical arguments and positions raised in the anthology's readings. By merging the cinematic and philosophical worlds, Introducing Philosophy Through Film provides a uniquely effective way for beginning students to engage with philosophy and gain insights into the human mind.

More than 900 men, women, and child actors from more than 300 films are covered, with biographical information, individual career summaries, and descriptions of the animated characters they have performed. Among those listed are Adriana Caselotti, of Snow White fame; Clarence Nash, the voice of Donald Duck; Sterling Holloway, best known for his vocal portrayal of Winnie the Pooh; and such show business luminaries as Bing Crosby, Bob Newhart, bicentennial man film cast: Inventory A.V. Club, 2009-10-13 Each week, the writers of The A.V. Club issue a slightly slanted pop-culture list filled with challenging opinions (Is David Bowie's Young Americans nearly ruined by saxophone?) and fascinating facts. Exploring twenty-four great films too painful to watch twice, fourteen tragic movie-masturbation scenes, eighteen songs about crappy cities, and much more, Inventory combines a massive helping of new lists created especially for the book with a few favorites first seen at AVClub.com and in the pages of The A.V. Club's sister publication, The Onion. But wait! There's more: John Hodgman offers a set of minutely detailed (and probably fictional) character actors. Patton Oswalt waxes ecstatic about the quiet film revolutions that changed cinema in small but exciting ways. Amy Sedaris lists fifty things that make her laugh. Weird Al Yankovic examines the noises of Mad magazine's Don Martin. Plus lists from Paul Thomas Anderson, Robert Ben Garant, Tom Lennon, Andrew W.K., Tim and Eric, Daniel Handler, and Zach Galifianakis—and an epic foreword from essayist Chuck Klosterman.

George Sanders, Dinah Shore, Jennifer Tilly and James Woods. In addition, a complete directory of animated Disney films enables the reader to cross-reference the actors with their characters.

bicentennial man film cast: Food in the Movies, 2d ed. Steve Zimmerman, 2010-07-28 Although food has been part of motion pictures since the silent era, for the most part it has been treated with about as much respect as movie extras: it's always been there on the screen but seldom noticed. For the most part filmmakers have settled on three basic ways to treat food: as a prop in which the food is usually obscured from sight or ignored by the actors; as a transition device to compress time and help advance the plot; as a symbol or metaphor, or in some other meaningful way, to make a dramatic point or to reveal an aspect of an actor's character, mood or thought process. This hugely expanded and revised edition details 400 food scenes, in addition to the 400 films reviewed for the first edition, and an introduction tracing the technical, artistic and cultural forces that contributed to the emergence of food films as a new genre--originated by such films as Tampopo, Babette's Feast and more recently by films like Mostly Martha, No Reservations and Ratatouille. A filmography is included as an appendix.

The work offers more than 5,000 three- to five-star entries (three stars=good; four stars=excellent; five stars=masterpiece), and yes, author Jay Robert Nash has viewed every single one of them as well as many more that did not make the cut. In addition to a precis, each film's entry also includes a listing of the cast as well as the key principles involved in production, from the director to the hair stylist. Especially unique to this book is a rating system that helps parents determine whether or not a film is appropriate for their children. Unlike the industry rating system which can be influenced by studio lobbying, Nash objectively evaluates each film and confers upon it one of four recommendations for viewing: recommended, acceptable, cautionary, and unacceptable. Backmatter includes a list of top films by genre (i.e. animated, drama, sports, mystery, adventure etc.) as well as an annotated name index listing all persons mentioned along with their dates of birth and death. Rounding out this essential volume for the film buff are over 500 still photos from the author's private collection.
