Overview of Dreaming in Cuban

Dreaming in Cuban, published in 1992 by Cristina García, is a seminal work in Cuban-American literature that chronicles the lives of the del Pino family across three generations. The novel is set against the backdrop of Cuba's turbulent political history, particularly focusing on the Cuban Revolution and its aftermath. It intricately weaves personal and political narratives, illustrating how historical events shape individual destinies. The novel highlights the immigrant experience, cultural dislocation, and the search for identity among Cuban exiles. Through its rich portrayal of family dynamics and cultural conflict, Dreaming in Cuban offers a poignant exploration of belonging and memory.

Main Characters and Their Roles

The characters in Dreaming in Cuban are central to understanding its themes and narrative progression. The multi-generational story revolves around the del Pino family, primarily the women whose lives reflect the shifting political and cultural landscapes of Cuba and the United States.

Celia del Pino

Celia is the matriarch of the family and a staunch supporter of the Cuban Revolution. Her unwavering political beliefs and deep connection to Cuba shape much of the family's internal conflict. Celia's perspective provides insight into the revolutionary ideals and their impact on Cuban society.

Lourdes del Pino

Lourdes, Celia's daughter, represents the Cuban exile experience. Having fled Cuba, she struggles with her identity and the tension between her homeland and her new life in the United States. Lourdes' story reflects themes of displacement and cultural adaptation.

Felicia del Pino

Felicia, Lourdes' daughter, embodies the younger generation's quest for independence and self-discovery. Her experiences highlight the generational divide and the complexities of growing up between two cultures.

- Celia del Pino - revolutionary matriarch
- Lourdes del Pino - Cuban exile and mother
- Felicia del Pino - American-born granddaughter
- Other supporting characters - relatives and friends influencing the family dynamics

Plot Summary and Structure

Dreaming in Cuban employs a non-linear narrative structure, alternating between different timelines and perspectives to reveal the family's history and emotional struggles. The plot centers on the complex relationships among the del Pino women, exploring their personal ambitions, political loyalties, and emotional wounds.

Multiple Perspectives

The novel uses shifting points of view to provide a multifaceted understanding of events. This technique enables readers to see conflicts and motivations from various angles, enriching the narrative depth.

Timeline and Setting

The story spans several decades, from pre-revolutionary Cuba to the post-revolution era and the Cuban exile community in the United States. These settings underscore the cultural and political changes influencing the characters' lives.

Themes and Motifs

Dreaming in Cuban explores several pervasive themes that resonate throughout the narrative, highlighting the complexities of Cuban identity and family legacy.

Family and Generational Conflict

The novel examines the tensions between mothers and daughters, emphasizing how political and cultural differences exacerbate familial divides. The del Pino women's relationships reflect broader struggles over heritage and assimilation.

Exile and Identity

The theme of exile is central, portraying the emotional and psychological challenges faced by those who leave their homeland. The characters grapple with preserving their Cuban identity while adapting to life in the United States.

Political Ideology and Revolution

Celia's commitment to the revolution contrasts with Lourdes' disillusionment and Felicia's ambivalence. The novel explores how political beliefs shape personal choices and family dynamics.

Magical Realism

Elements of magical realism permeate the story, blending reality with supernatural occurrences to emphasize memory, dreams, and cultural spirituality.

1. Family and generational conflict
2. Exile and cultural identity
3. Political ideology and revolution
4. Memory and magical realism

Historical and Political Context

Understanding the historical and political background is essential to comprehending the depth of Dreaming in Cuban. The Cuban Revolution of 1959 and its aftermath profoundly affect the characters and their choices.

The Cuban Revolution

The revolution serves as a pivotal event that divides the del Pino family and reshapes Cuban society. Celia's support for Fidel Castro's regime contrasts sharply with Lourdes' decision to leave Cuba, illustrating the polarizing impact of political change.

Exile and Diaspora

The novel reflects the experience of the Cuban diaspora, focusing on themes of displacement, nostalgia, and the challenges of maintaining cultural roots abroad. It captures the emotional complexities of exile and the longing for home.

Narrative Style and Literary Techniques

Cristina García's narrative style in Dreaming in Cuban is notable for its lyrical prose and innovative techniques that enhance the storytelling.

Multiple Narrators

The use of multiple narrators allows for a rich, layered narrative that presents diverse viewpoints. This approach deepens the reader's understanding of conflicting emotions and ideologies within the family.

Non-linear Timeline

The story's non-linear progression mirrors the fragmented nature of memory and history, weaving past and present to reveal hidden connections and unresolved tensions.

Use of Magical Realism

Magical realism functions to blur the boundaries between reality and fantasy, highlighting cultural beliefs and the significance of dreams in the characters' lives.

Significance and Impact of the Novel

Dreaming in Cuban is widely regarded as a landmark work in Cuban-American literature, celebrated for its nuanced portrayal of identity, memory, and political conflict.

Cultural Representation

The novel provides a voice to Cuban exile experiences, illuminating the complexities of bicultural identity and the enduring ties to homeland.

Literary Contribution

García's innovative narrative style and thematic depth have influenced contemporary Latinx literature, opening avenues for exploring diasporic and feminist themes.

Critical Reception

The novel received critical acclaim for its emotional resonance and insightful examination of Cuban history and family dynamics, cementing its status as an essential read in Latin American and immigrant literature.

dreaming in cuban summary: Dreaming in Cuban Cristina García, 1993-02-10 "Impressive . . . [Cristina García's] story is about three generations of Cuban women and their separate responses to the revolution. Her special feat is to tell it in a style as warm and gentle as the 'sustaining aromas of vanilla and almond,' as rhythmic as the music of Beny Moré."—Time Cristina García's acclaimed book is the haunting, bittersweet story of a family experiencing a country's revolution and the revelations that follow. The lives of Celia del Pino and her husband, daughters, and grandchildren mirror the magical realism of Cuba itself, a landscape of beauty and poverty, idealism and corruption. Dreaming in Cuban is "a work that possesses both the intimacy of a Chekov story and the hallucinatory magic of a novel by Gabriel García Márquez" (The New York Times). In celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the novel's original publication, this edition features a new introduction by the author. Praise for Dreaming in Cuban "Remarkable . . . an intricate weaving of dramatic events with the supernatural and the cosmic . . . evocative and lush."—San Francisco Chronicle "Captures the pain, the distance, the frustrations and the dreams of these family dramas with a vivid, poetic prose."—The Washington Post "Brilliant . . . With tremendous skill, passion and humor, García just may have written the definitive story of Cuban exiles and some of those they left behind."—The Denver Post dreaming in cuban summary: Dance Between Two Cultures William Luis, 2001 Offers insights on Latino Caribbean writers born or raised in the United States who are at the vanguard of a literary movement that has captured both critical and popular interest. In this groundbreaking study, William Luis analyzes the most salient and representative narrative and poetic works of the newest literary movement to emerge in Spanish American and U.S. literatures. The book is divided into three sections, each focused on representative Puerto Rican American, Cuban American, and Dominican American authors. Luis traces the writers' origins and influences from the nineteenth century to the present, focusing especially on the contemporary works of Oscar Hijuelos, Julia Alvarez, Cristina Garcia, and Piri Thomas, among others. While engaging in close readings of the texts, Luis places them in a broader social, historical, political, and racial perspective to expose the tension between text and context. As a group, Latino Caribbeans write an ethnic literature in English that is born of their struggle to forge an identity separate from both the influences of their parents' culture and those of the United States. For these writers, their parents' country of origin is a distant memory. They have developed a culture of resistance and a language that mediates between their parents' identity and the culture that they themselves live in. Latino Caribbeans are engaged in a metaphorical dance with Anglo Americans as the dominant culture. Just as that dance represents a coming together of separate influences to make a unique art form, so do both Hispanic and North American cultures combine to bring a new literature into being. This new body of literature helps us to understand not only the adjustments Latino Caribbean cultures have had to make within the larger U.S. environment but also how the dominant culture has been affected by their presence.

dreaming in cuban summary: Psychonarratology Marisa Bortolussi, Peter Dixon, 2003-01-13 Psychonarratology is an approach to the empirical study of literary response and the processing of narrative. It draws on the empirical methodology of cognitive psychology and discourse processing as well as the theoretical insights and conceptual analysis of literary studies, particularly narratology. The present work provides a conceptual and empirical basis for this interdisciplinary approach that is accessible to researchers from either disciplinary background. An integrative review is presented of the classic problems in narratology: the status of the narrator, events and plot, characters and characterization, speech and thought, and focalization. For each area, Bortolussi and Dixon critique the state of the art in narratology and literary studies, discuss relevant work in cognitive psychology, and provide a new analytical framework based on the insight that readers treat the narrator as a conversational participant. Empirical evidence is presented on each problem, much of it previously unpublished.

Combining analysis and advocacy, Latina/o Studies is an accessible yet theoretically sophisticated introduction to the communities charting the future of the United States of America and the Américas writ large.

dreaming in cuban summary: Understanding Contemporary Cuba in Visual and Verbal Forms Max Dorsinville, 2004 This study is a contribution to literary and cultural history. It argues that, as mirrored acts of representation, the visual and verbal yield a common language based on the image defined by Ezra Pound as 'an intellectual and emotional complex in an instant of time.' The study refers to other modernist writers such as Joseph Conrad, T. S. Eliot, and Ernest Hemingway, the photography of Henri Cartier-Bresson, and the theories on perception of Maurice Merleau-Ponty, Jean-Paul Sartre, and John Berger. It applies these perspectives to the works of diverse writers who chose Cuba for a subject, finding a rich field for discussion of issues of representation, language and perception. In the concept of the gaze, it argues for the significance of a link between modernist theory and Cuban life represented in a range of works by Cristina Garcia, Edmundo Desnoes, Pico Iyer, Derek Walcott, and others, where nothing is what it seems.
