The Occupational Therapy Practice Framework (OTPF) 4th edition serves as the official guide that defines the domain and process of occupational therapy. Published by the American Occupational Therapy Association (AOTA), it provides a comprehensive structure for understanding and delivering occupational therapy services. The 4th edition reflects current practice trends, research evidence, and evolving healthcare environments, making it a critical reference for practitioners and students alike.

Understanding the core components of the OTPF 4th edition is fundamental for mastering the framework. These components provide the foundation upon which occupational therapy assessment and intervention are based.

Domain of Occupational Therapy

The domain defines the central areas of occupational therapy practice. It includes:

- Contexts and Environments: Physical, social, cultural, personal, temporal, and virtual factors that affect occupational engagement.

Process of Occupational Therapy

The occupational therapy process is a dynamic and client-centered approach consisting of three main steps:

1. Evaluation: Gathering and analyzing information about the client's occupational history, interests, needs, and goals.

2. Intervention: Designing and implementing actions to promote health and participation through occupation.
