captures UGA's colorful past, dynamic present, and promising future in a novel way: by surveying its buildings, structures, and spaces. These physical features are the university's most visible--and some of its most valuable--resources. Yet they are largely overlooked, or treated only passing, in histories and standard publications about UGA. Through text and photographs, this book places buildings and spaces in the context of UGA's development over more than 225 years. After opening with a brief historical overview of the university, the book profiles over 140 buildings, landmarks, and spaces, their history, appearance, and past and current usage, as well as their namesake, beginning with the oldest structures on North Campus and progressing to the newest facilities on South and East Campus and the emerging Northwest Quadrant. Many profiles are supplemented with sidebars relating traditions, lore, facts, or alumni recollections associated with buildings and spaces. More than just landmarks or static elements of infrastructure, buildings and spaces embody the university's values, cultural heritage, and educational purpose. These facilities--many more than a century old--are where students learn, explore, and grow and where faculty teach, research, and create. They harbor the university's history and traditions, protect its treasures, and hold memories for alumni. The repository for books, documents, artifacts, and tools that contain and convey much of the accumulated knowledge and wisdom of human existence, these structures are the legacy of generations. And they are tangible symbols of UGA's commitment to improve our world through education. uga bookstore textbooks: Technology in Student Affairs: Supporting Student Learning and Services Kevin Kruger, 2005 The literature and research on the use of technology in student affairs is still very limited. This volume of New Direction for Student Services was written to increase our understanding of the role of technology in the student learning experience of campus-based and as well as distance learners. Information technology has become a central tool in creating 24/7 self-service experiences for students interacting with campus administrative functions. Recent technologies also create the real possibility of moving beyond administrative functions to playing a central role in student learning, community development and student development. This volume monograph attempts to capture the current thinking around the use of technology in student affairs. It is not a review of the actual technologies in use in student affairs. The pace of change is so fast that such a treatment would make the writing out-of-date within two years. In that light, this volume focuses less on the technology and more on the ways in which the technology is altering the organization of student affairs, the ways in which the lines between campus based students and distance learners are blurring and the increasing role technology is playing in student learning.

uga bookstore textbooks: Where the Roses Bleed Erica Bunker, 2025-07-09 Where the Roses Bleed is a tense, atmospheric domestic thriller set in the insular Southern enclave of Five Points in Athens, Georgia. When Lena Carter moves to Magnolia Lane after her divorce, she envisions a fresh start for herself and her daughter, Summer—far away from the whispers and judgment of Atlanta's social scene. But from the moment she steps onto her new porch, it's clear that the neighborhood's manicured lawns conceal deep, tangled roots of power, privilege, and quiet hostility. At the center of it all is Caroline Whitaker: the queen bee of Five Points, a woman whose polished charm masks ruthless ambition. When Caroline takes an unsettling interest in Summer—pressuring her to pledge the same elite sorority her family has ruled for generations—Lena pushes back, refusing to let her daughter be co-opted into a world built on exclusion. Their simmering feud becomes the talk of the neighborhood, culminating in a tense public confrontation at Caroline's lavish Summer Soiree. The next morning, Caroline is found bludgeoned to death in her prized garden. The murder weapon? A heavy garden gnome Lena once innocently admired—and now, the neighbors can't stop whispering that she used. As gossip hardens into suspicion and long-held secrets come crawling into the light, Lena becomes the prime suspect in a crime that fractures the community's carefully maintained facade. Told through multiple, often unreliable narrators—Lena, Caroline, their husbands, and the neighbors who know more than they admit—Where the Roses Bleed is a sharp, emotionally charged exploration of status, race, and the dangerous consequences of defiance in a place that demands conformity. uga bookstore textbooks: An Education in Georgia Calvin Trillin, 1964 In January 1961, following eighteen months of litigation that culminated in a federal court order, Hamilton Holmes and Charlayne Hunter became the first black students to enter the University of Georgia. Calvin Trillin, then a reporter for Time Magazine, attended the court fight that led to the admission of Holmes and Hunter and covered their first week at the university--a week that began in relative calm, moved on to a riot and the suspension of the two students for their own safety, and ended with both returning to the campus under a new court order. Shortly before their graduation in 1963, Trillin came back to Georgia to determine what their college lives had been like. He interviewed not only Holmes and Hunter but also their families, friends, and fellow students, professors, and university administrators. The result was this book--a sharply detailed portrait of how these two young people faced coldness, hostility, and occasional understanding on a southern campus in the midst of a great social change.

uga bookstore textbooks: A Walking Tour of the University of Georgia F. N. Boney, 1989 Factual and entertaining, compact and easy to follow, A Walking Tour of the University of Georgia takes the reader on a leisurely tour of the campus, its history and heritage. When the Georgia legislature chartered the nation's first state university in 1785, the town of Athens was a wilderness. The first university classes, in 1801, were held in a log cabin, and no permanent structure was built until Franklin College--now Old College--was completed in 1806. Since that time, the university has expanded vigorously. The buildings of the University of Georgia--spread over several miles and encompassing many architectural styles--range from the federal style of Demosthenian Hall and the classical design of Brooks Hall to the glass dome and marble of Butts-Mehre Heritage Hall. F.N. Boney's A Walking Tour of the University of Georgia guides the reader through the entire campus, offering easy-to-follow maps, photographs, and histories of most structures, as well as information about former students, college life, and the city of Athens.
